(Knoxville, Tenn.) – These are the final days for the popular feature exhibition, Live! On Air! and In Your Living Room, on display at the Museum of East Tennessee History through February 23, 2014. The exhibit covers the first twenty years of East Tennessee television and is rich with vintage clips from the old Cas Walker Farm and Home Hour, Bonnie Lou and Buster, Jim Clayton’s Startime, early television commercials, and much, much more. A 1960s living room and a backdrop of from the Cas Walker Show bring the era to life. So far, more than 10,000 visitors have enjoyed the very popular exhibit and took part in the corresponding programming.

The exhibition is in partnership with the Tennessee Archive of Moving Image and Sound, a division of the Calvin M. McClung Historical Collection of the Knox County Public Library. The exhibition is sponsored by Joe and Cindy Emert, with support from @Home Audio Video, the Clayton Foundation, Ross Bagwell, WDVX, WBIR Channel 10, and the MetroPulse.
